“I provide highly responsive service and like to get to the point quickly. I like to identify and manage legal risk, simplify matters, and focus on what really matters.”

Jonathan Shallow takes companies from formation to exit, focusing on formation, financing, strategy, governance, and mergers and acquisitions. He works with clients across the US, as well as in Europe and Asia, with a focus on helping non-US companies launch in the United States.

Jonathan previously spent a number of years working in New York for public and pre-IPO clients, as well as large private equity investors and hedge funds, engaging in a variety of matters, including IPOs, public and private debt and equity offerings and investments, and commercial lending. Having moved to Seattle a decade ago, he now works primarily with private companies and focuses on tailoring his advice and providing solutions to best structure a client for growth and/or sale (and in some cases IPO), while being mindful of a company’s life cycle stage so as to provide highly responsive, relevant, and practical advice.

Jonathan works across a wide variety of industries including AI, consumer products, water remediation, energy storage, solar, wind, digital assets, real estate, transportation, manufacturing and distribution, and sports and entertainment. He has worked on transactions ranging in value from a few thousand dollars to a few hundred billion dollars, with global clients who are among the biggest in their industries, to those with a single founder working alone. He loves to learn about new products and ideas and to help clients penetrate existing markets or find new ones.

Prior to joining Miller Nash, Jonathan worked as an attorney for international law firms on both the east and west coasts of the United States.
