“I primarily think of myself as a problem-solver for clients. My favorite part of the practice is learning about the client’s work, whether they are a mission-driven public body or a private business seeking to grow. It is the fastest way to become part of the team and provide the best service.”

Jeff Condit’s core practice focuses on government and regulatory law, including municipal, special district, K-12, and higher education law. He focuses on the business and governance side of this practice. Jeff handles matters as diverse as statutory authority and construction, administrative law, public contracting and procurement, public finance, legislation, franchise drafting and negotiation, public records and meetings, government ethics, prevailing-wage issues, and election law. Jeff also advises public and private clients on land use matters, including representing clients before local hearings bodies, the Oregon Land Use Board of Appeals, the Land Conservation and Development Commission, and the appellate courts.

Jeff enjoys working with or serving as general counsel for the firm’s public entity clients, and has a deep understanding of that role. Before joining Miller Nash, Jeff served as the city attorney for the City of Lake Oswego and as county counsel for Benton County. Since joining the firm, he has served in this capacity for cities, school districts, and community colleges.
