“I work closely with franchise and distribution companies to help them start, grow, and protect their businesses. I treat my clients like family, their concerns as my own, and work hard to weave the law, the needs of the business, and common sense into practical, strategic advice. As our clients navigate murky regulatory waters, embark on a major transaction, or encounter any number of other franchising opportunities or hazards, I aim to be their expert guide.”

Josh Piper is a nationally recognized business franchise and distribution attorney with more than 14 years of experience representing franchisors, manufacturers, licensors, and distributors in their expansion and strategic development. He counsels franchisors in every stage of their development, including the decision to franchise, preparation and registration of franchise documents, management of franchise relationships, franchise growth strategies, negotiation of supplier and joint venture agreements, and termination of franchise relationships. He also represents private equity companies and existing franchisors in buying and selling franchise companies.

Josh counsels clients on franchise sales compliance duties and advises franchise and non-franchise distribution systems on a broad array of operating issues—ranging from contract enforcement, trademark protection, relationship disputes, antitrust and pricing matters, to terminations and transfers, mergers and acquisitions, and implementation of system-wide changes.
